Direct Costs and Net Cost Are Not the Same.

DIRECT COSTS

Estimated tuition, fees, and applicable housing and food expenses.

These may include charges billed by the College.

INDIRECT COSTS

Estimated books, supplies, transportation, and personal expenses.

These are not normally billed by the College.

See the Difference

Here is a sample calculation for a residential student.

Direct costs (tuition, fees, housing and food)	$49,400.00
Estimated grants and scholarships	–$20,800.00
Estimated direct costs after aid	$28,600.00
Estimated indirect expenses (books, transportation, personal, etc.)	$4,000.00
Estimated Net Price (what the calculator displays)	$32,600.00

The calculator includes an additional $4,000.00 in indirect expenses, resulting in a displayed net price of $32,600.00.

Focus on Net Price, Not Sticker Price.

The number you see first (direct costs) includes tuition, fees, and housing. The net price shows your estimated cost after grants and scholarships, and includes additional indirect expenses like books, transportation, and personal costs. The Net Price Calculator gives you a more complete picture of what college may actually cost.

A Few Things to Remember

- Your calculator results are estimates, not a financial aid offer.
- Grants and scholarships generally do not need to be repaid.
- Your actual costs and financial aid depend on your individual circumstances and final eligibility.

The Net Price Calculator provides an estimate, not a final determination or actual financial aid offer. Your actual charges and aid may differ. Federal student aid eligibility requires completion of the FAFSA.
